

Assoc. Prof. Dr. Jurgita Vizgirdaitė

In 2013 Jurgita Vizgirdaitė defended her dissertation "Educational Empowerment of Student Collaborative Learning in the University Studies" at Kaunas University of Technology (field - Educology). She obtained her Bachelor's and Master's degrees in the USA, where she started her teaching career, which she later continued in Lithuania and currently holds the position of associate professor and teaches in the field of learning to learn. After defending her dissertation, she started working in the fields of quality in higher education and modern teaching methods. She has published scientific articles, methodological materials and e-resources on these topics. She has experience in curriculum development and in chairing curriculum committees. Currently, J. Vizgirdaitė is the Deputy Director of the Study Service at Vilnius University Business School, coordinating business studies. She participates in various working groups related to ensuring the quality of studies in higher education, and is an expert in educational consultancy. She is an expert in the evaluation of study programmes and fields of study in Lithuania and abroad. She was the head of the working group that prepared the "Methodology for the development of descriptions of study fields for different levels of study" (Vilnius, 2019, SKVC).